

Pigs in the City 4

LEXINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA • 2008

Hoof it to Uptown Lexington to feast your eyes on the popular public art initiative Pigs in the City 4, an outdoor exhibit in place from May 23 to October 23, 2008. This is an all new version of this popular project, with 20 new fiberglass pigs that are painted by local artists in a wide variety of themes that add a fun new dimension to the great Lexington-style barbecue tradition.

Sponsored by Uptown Lexington, the revitalization organization for the historic commercial district, this whimsical public art exhibit is set up to draw visitors from all over to spend a day strolling our quaint streets and exploring unique specialty shops. Be sure to pick up a Hoofin' Map before you do the Pig Walk. The map, identifying each pig by its title and location, is available at most Uptown

Lexington retailers, restaurants, the Visitor's Information Center, and the office of Uptown Lexington Inc.

Dining

Lexington, widely known as the Barbecue Capital of the World, has more than 20 restaurants that specialize in the famous Lexington-style barbecue. If barbecue does not tempt your taste buds, other Lexington restaurants offer you a variety of cuisines and tastes, including Italian, Mediterranean, Mexican, Asian, American Homestyle, and seafoods. Be sure to pick up your Area Dining Guide at the Visitor's Information Center at 16 East Center Street, or at Uptown Lexington, Inc. at 220 North Main Street. This helpful guide gives all of the names of locations of the various restaurants in the greater Lexington area.
